HONGKONG, JANUARY 20TH, 1877.

THE presentation to the Chief-Justice of a pair of white gloves in commemoration of another Maiden Session is matter of congratulation to the Colony. It may be regarded As a proof that crime of a serious character is on the decrease. For some time past the cases at the Criminal Sessions have shown a marked diminution, and only a few months back a Maiden Session occurred in vacation, This is, of course, partly to be accounted for by the increased powers given to the Police Magistrales to dispose of indictable offences under the Magistrates Ordinance of 1875. But this cause ages not account for the great In 1866, there were twenty-four murders, in enterprise about by them.

1826 there were but three. In 1866 ther were no loss than three hundred and eighty. four persons convicted of highway robbery, while last year there were only twenty-four and so on in other cases. There has certainly been an increase in posty offences, but the This Comprehensive Work, now in the same cause which has helped to repress great crimes -- pamely, the increased vigilance of the tolice-has aided to bring these to light, and hence the increase is more apparent than real Moreover, the laws are now more stringent and many acts which were at one time passed over are now properly treated as offences It is evident from these facts that our unusually large and expensive Police Force is becoming at length something like efficient, Unfortunately Hengkong is, by its close proximity to the mainland of ringed. China, necessarily always liable to become a resort of the dangerous diasses from Cauton and elsewhere, and a large and costly Police establishment has consequently to be main. tained. NAVAL COURT-MARTIAL.

An important court martist has been held or board the Royal Adelaide, flagsuip, at Devonport, for the trial of Captain E. G. Pollard, of Her Majesty's ship Tenedos. The prisoner was harged first, with having, on the night of the 29th of July last, negligently hexarded the Tonedos in ordering the ship to bear up when off Cane Raper, on the south east coust of Africa whereby the said ship was in danger of being stranded on the shore or on a rock off the said Cape Baper; secondly, with having on the 15th day of November, 1876, at Plymouth, in a letter to Admiral Sir Thomas Symonds, K.O.B., committed an act to the prejudice of good order. and naval disomline in having in his report of the narrow escape of the ship omitted to state certain circumstances connected therewith Rear-Admiral G. O. Willes, C.B. presided, The evidence of Licutement Deane showed that the ship, at three c'olock on the morning of the Soth of July, when it was very dark, with a fresh gale blowing, passed between a large pinnaole rock and the shore within two balf-cables of the latter. There were breakers all round. After the ship had passed between the rook and the shore he felt that she escaped from a terrible disaster. The acquired in his defence, denied that he endangered the ship by negligence, and pointed out that, believing she was fifty five miles off the nearest land, when he bore up he was justified in doing so, and jo no way reaklessly hazarded the ship. Besides, as the navigating officer did not express disapproval of the course taken, he had a right to assume that he concorred in it. As to the second charge of will's minstatement, and which necessarily caused so much pain to an officer and man of honour, a indignantly denied it, and argued that although one sentence on which the charge was based might orests such an impression, yet the whole letter upact such an idea. In addition to which with the letter be sent the log and chart, on which it was clearly shown that the ship passed between the rook and the shore. The first lientenant deposed that the prisoner was always scrappiously cautions when the ship approached to Captain Pollard as follows - You were selected by me for promotion in China colely on account of the zenl and ability in performstatement entirely foreign to your character, my high opinion of which Admiral Wille with $100 added; for all Oh ina ponice; weights knows. ENGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY. PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Dally Press Office, Hongkong, MOR comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chineso have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous of jectem machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in ecience generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word in fully illustrated and explained, forming exer-Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a wast Medicine for me, and I certainly de enjoy good health, economy of space, achieving a clearness not meviously attained, and dispensing with those your Pills. I am 78 years old. vest margine and vacant spaces which have heretofore obaracterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration. Jhalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medburst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilet this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these stamples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub-

For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands Hinglish to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Ohinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in Chipa, and to the natives themselves it explains anbjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in Chine it cannot but be invaluable occasionally. It comprises anywards of two thousand large mile of sensuality and lust .- The Age of the

It is now nearly four hundred years since the first attempt was made to introduce Obristianity into the western portion of Airica. The summary of Christian missions on this coast may be given in a few words. The Roman Catholics come first. In 1481 the King of Portugul sent ten shine with 500 soldiers, 100 labourers, and a proper complement of priests as missionaries to Elmina. The Romish missions thus founded lingered on for a period of 241 years, till at last, in 1729, that of the Capuchine at Sierra Leone was given up, and they disappeared_altogether from West Africa. They had made no impression, except upon their immediate dependents; and what impression they made on them was soon totally obliterated. Protestant missionary attempts were commenced by the Moravians in 1736, 140 years ago, and continued till 1770. Five attempts cost eleven lives without visible results. The Wesleyans follow next. In the minutes of the Conference of 1792 we first find Africa on the list of the Woslegan missionary stations, Sierra Leone being the part occupied. In the minutes for 1796 we find the names of A. Murdoch and W. Patten set down as missionaries to the Fonlah country, in Africa, to which service they were solemnly set apart by Conference. The Church Missionary Society sent out its first missionaries in 1804. They established and attempted to maintain ten-stations among-tention directed to Western Africa as early were room-mates all the time, graduating as 1826. "TOM SAWYER!" MARE TWAIN'S LIST BOOK. Tom joined the new order of Cadets o Topperance, being attracted by the showy character of their " regalia." He promised to abstant from smoking, showing, and profamity as long as he remained a member. Now he found out a mor thing namely that to promise not to do a thing to the surest way in the world to make a body want to go and do that very thing. Tom soon found bimself tormented with a desire to drink and swear, the deare grew to be so intense that nothing but the hope of a chance to diplay himself in his red sash kent him from withdrawing from the order. Fourth of July was coming; but he soon gave that up give it up before he had worn his shackles forty-night hours, and fixed his bones upon old Judge Frazer Justice of Pence, who was apparently ou his dend-bed, and would have a big public funeral, since he was so high an official. During three days Tom was deenly concerned about the judge's condition, and hungry for news of it. Sometimes his hopes rau highso high that he would wenture to got out his regalia and practice before the boking-glass. But the judge had a most discouraging way of fluctuating. At last to was pronounced upon the mend, and then convalescent. Tom was disgusted, and felt a since of injury, too. He handed in his resignation at once, and that night the judge suffered a relapse and died. Ton resolved that he would never trust a man like that again. The funeral was a fine thing. And that night there same on a terrific storm, with driving rain, awful claps of thunder and blinding sheets of lighting. He covered his bead with the bedelothes and waited in a horror of suspense for his doom, for he had not a mindow of a doubt that all this hubbub was about him: He believed he had taxed the forbearance of the powers above to the extremity of endurance, and this was the result. It might have seemed to him a waste of pump and ammunition to kill a bug with a battery of artillery, but there seemed nothing incongruous about the getting up, of such an expensive thunderstorm as this to knock the turk from under an inset like bimself.

By and by the tempest spent itself and died without accomplishing its object. The boy's first impulse was to be grateful and reform. His second was to wait for there night not be any more storms.

The next day the doctors were back. Tom had relapsed. The three weeks he spent on his back this time seemed an entire age. When he got sbroad at lat he was hardly grateful that he had been spared, remembering how lovely was his estate, how companionless and forlorn he was. He drifted listlessly down the street and found Jim Hollis acting as judge in a juvenile court that was trying a cat for murder, in the presence of her victio, a bird. He found Joe Harper and Huck I inn upan alley, eating a stolen melon. Poor fellow, they, like Tom, had suffered a relapse.
